

Tourism

The best things to do on a Hong Kong layover, from airport entertainment to island hopping

If you're fed up of airport lounges and duty free shopping, discover how to spice up your Hong Kong layover, whether it's a quick three-hour stop or a full half-day stretch

PUBLISHED : Tuesday, 01 August, 2017, 1:01pm

UPDATED : Tuesday, 01 August, 2017, 11:00pm

6 hours: Walk the city

Hong Kong is best explored on foot, and a handful of companies offer walking tours that can keep your experience fun and focused.

Little Adventures in Hong Kong offers tailored private tours that allow you to plunge into the everyday life of public housing estates, street markets and the city's oldest neighbourhoods. Its food tours are especially notable. Four food writers and a chef are available to work with you to develop a customised itinerary that can be enjoyed with up to two other friends. Want to experience the city's best dim sum? Want to know more about Chiu Chow food? You're in good hands.

